ABOUT THIS — AND —
ABOUT THAT

By OLIVER GEDEIST

ALIKE—Truman hypocrisy and GOP perfidy seem to be the political pattern these days.

LATE—Mr. Truman piously attacks price rises and European destitution and urges immediate action as necessary. No informed person will deny that action is necessary. But the same action, taken six months ago, would have had better results. The President and Congress, fearing political tricks, stalled until the President reached a stage of frantic fear and now calls Congress to do what it should have done before adjournment.

THE SUFFERERS—The worst sufferers from spectacularly high prices are persons of modest fixed incomes and the lower-paid workers of the country. They always suffer first and last and in-between. But politics, it seems, must be served first.

TAINT—If Mr. Truman months ago could have shaken off the political tainting under the Pendergasts and fearlessly demanded that Congress act, certainly astute Republican lawmakers would not have refused to do what they knew should be done. The taint of Mr. Truman's Kansas City organization training is a handicap to him, and he does little to throw off that taint. And GOP leaders ape him. Vigorous honesty with "damned be politics" is needed. That would produce intelligent and timely action.

MR. TAFT—Even Mr. Taft, perhaps the best-equipped man in the country, for the job of presiding the nation, and one of the highest integrity, recently criticized, with great indefiniteness, Mr. Truman's foreign policy, and aid to other nations, while admitting that "more information" might be required before forming an opinion. Later, pinned down, he refused to oppose relief to Europe—he is, at heart, honest and he knows that aid is necessary—not for Europe primarily, but FOR THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA. The bigger bulkhead we build NOW against communism, the less lengthy will be the next war. And that's worth while. Politically, Mr. Taft would not vigorously support what he actually admits is necessary—only because of political consideration. At that, however, he looks like the best bet the country has.

STILL LOST—There are, of course, a great many of our fellow citizens still lost in contemplating the days of our American Revolution. They do not keep up. They still hold European hatreds. Too often that blinds them to the need for maintaining friendly relations with those countries. But we are in a small world, a fast world, with destruction riding on wings of swiftness. Friendships among nations are to be desired.

CHECKS—But checks should be put on expenditures. Right now there is fear that Kansas City political money morality may be involved. Meaning, of course, that there may be padding for political purposes. At the best, it is likely that enough New Dealism lives to include a host of incompetents in the handling of the relief for Europe. That should be checked, not from political motives, but for the sake of honesty. Probably honest bookkeeping would help.

NOT ATTAINABLE—In human life, perfection is not attainable. With the future clouded with dangers surpassing anything in history, however, it seems little enough to ask that honest effort be made to do the best that frail human efforts can do.

Frank Luhring
In Near Accident

Saturday morning, while on his way to Joliet, Frank Luhring of Frankfort, escaped what might have been a very serious accident. As he neared the intersection of route 30 and Washington street, a car with an Indiana license drove up ahead of him and came to a dead stop.

Mr. Luhring, unable to stop at once bumped into the car, while a car back of him crashed into his car.

William Koerner of Frankfort happened along just then and took Mr. Luhring to Silver Cross, where it was learned he was suffering from shock. His only injury was a bleeding nose. His car was slightly damaged.

Frankfort Firemen Called
Frankfort firemen were called to Lincoln Estates Monday afternoon, but upon arrival found only a small fire resulting from a small oil stove. Damage was negligible.

NEW LENOX BAND GROWTH
HINGES ON RAISING FUNDS

Plans for a 50-member New Lenox school band hinges upon sufficient income to enable the New Lenox Band association to buy new instruments and uniforms for the additional membership. It was announced this week by School Superintendent John Oster and the band director, W. H. Reed.

It was stated that at least an additional dozen youngsters seek membership in the band, which has earned many honors in the past year. The bake sale last Saturday was the first of the season's efforts to build up funds for new equipment for new members.

A statement prepared by Corwin McClain, treasurer of the association, reveals that from the beginning of the last school year to the opening of school this year the organization spent $1,208.30 and raised $1,141.98, which, with a balance carried over from the previous year, left the treasury with $21.46.

Principal item of expenditures were $333 for uniforms, $240 for additional instruments, $260 for instrument repairs, and $262 for a popcorn machine. Other expenditures were for music, stands, transportation, entry fees in contests, and printer's bills.

Principal sources of revenue were local organizations which contributed $295 toward the new uniforms, the band concert, which brought in $133.40, sale of refreshments at ball games and picnics, $451.38. Other receipts were from membership dues and expense allowances for out-of-town trips.

One of the big items of expense, the popcorn machine, is an investment which the association hopes to use to raise additional revenues. The VFW post has offered the band association the opportunity of selling refreshments at the post's parties, stated for every two weeks throughout the winter months.

Suppression of head-hunting leads to a "decline in enterprise and zest for life and hastens a deterioration of the population" in the more primitive Melanesian tribes, according to some evidence found by anthropologists, it is stated in the Encyclopedia Britannica. Melanesians believe that the power of the slain enemy resides in his skull, which will therefore confer more strength on the victor who possesses it.

As the truck came to rest, furious flames burst from the cab, turning it into a blazing inferno. The flash fire occurred just as Mr. Campbell was emerging from the cab.

The New Lenox Volunteer Fire department was called and succeeded in confining the blaze to the cab. Loaded with scrap roofing, the load spilled from the truck and blocked the highway for several hours. Traffic was rerouted to Haven avenue. Another truck was sent from Argo and the

Junior High

The whole school enjoyed the movie "The Swan," Friday afternoon.

Our room has been kept in a very pretty manner by autumn leaves and flowers which different pupils have brought to school.

In the girls "P. E." class last week we completed our baseball game and now we are ready to start in a new group of activities.

Our Junior Scholastic magazine has offered an award for art drawings, so many of the pupils are busily working on a drawing to enter. The contest will be held at Block and Kuhl Co. in Peoria.

The literary club is going to hold a ping pong tournament in social hours, so all the pupils that are going to enter have been practicing.

1st and 2nd Grades

The primary room has been busy making Halloween decorations. We have cut out jack-o'-lanterns, witches, and black cats, and colored Halloween pictures to put up in our room.

In music class we have been singing nursery rhymes and learning lullabies. Two of our favorites are "Polly Put the Kettle On" and "Looby Loo."

Fifteen first-graders and 15 second-graders had perfect attendance for the past four weeks; they are Barbara Fossum, Carole Gilmore, Phyllis Hacker, Suzanne Kellogg, Fred Kieslar, Carol Marti, Kenneth Miller, Holly Repholz, Ruth Reyelts, Diane Sorensen, Sandra Swinford, Carole Tribble, Mickey Werner, Tommy Williams, Lee Yunker, Nancy Armin, Sheila Bennett, Susan Benson, Gerry Chamberlain, Kathryn Cooper, Sheila Gross, Leonard Hemmrich, Carol Hohenstein, Linda Sue Powers, David Schultz, Robert Teske, Billy Westman, and Robert Yunker.

One of our favorite are lessons in waxing leaves. We have a collection of them displayed in our room.

The following second-graders each received a gold star for completing four perfect spelling lessons: Sheila Bennett, Kathryn Cooper, Tommy Dunham, Carol Hohenstein, Ronald Guendling, Linda Sue Powers, Gladys Rinke, and Theresa Shunko.

3rd and 4th Grades

The radio program, School Time, at 1:15 is enjoyed by all the pupils.

Jean Cooney has been on the sick list for the past week. Judith Rinke returned to school after several days illness.

We have morning inspection for the ivory inspection sheet. It is making us more conscious of our appearance.

Our Indian exhibit created much interest. Many things were brought in by the pupils.

We are glad to welcome Paul Landahl into our classroom.

Perfect attendance was attained by all except two who were sick.

Many interesting pictures and good rules to follow for fire prevention week were presented to the room.

We are working to make a perfect score every Friday on our spelling. Several of us are already receiving 100 percent most every Friday. With a little more effort we will make the goal.

We are preparing our Junior Red Cross box for the drive. Our enrollment is nearly 100 per cent.

We have all enjoyed the movies given each week.

5th and 6th Grades

We enjoyed our movies of "Our Flag" this week very much, as the maps of the United States correspond with the work we have been doing. We have been busy learning all the states and their capitals.

With Halloween so near we are looking forward to our party next Friday. We are having a soap-carving contest in our room, and the winner will be announced next Thursday.

Some of our "Good English" posters have turned out very well. We have also been quite enthused over our rocking-horse art project.

We welcome LaVerne Sands to our room. She entered our school Monday.

The fifth graders have prepared some drawings portraying some of their stories in reading which they will show to their classmates on the scroll.

Ray Sullivan Has
Contract for Work

Approximately 100 acres of Orland farmland unused for a number of years will be brought back into productivity as the result of a farm drainage system being installed by a group of four Orland farmers.

To achieve this result, a total of 6,100 feet of drain will have been installed when the project is completed, plus necessary catch basins. An underground installation by the Cook county highway department, along with the catch basins, is the highway department's contribution to reclaiming the large segment of land.

Four Orland farmers are responsible for the giant project, which will include 2,000 feet of concrete pipe crossing the farms of Andrew Rafez and Henry Horn, associated with John Cooper and Howard Cooper in the reclamation program. The contract is being handled by Ray Sullivan of Orland.

The retired acreage fell into disuse seven or eight years ago, it was said, when the former drain pipe became plugged and then useless and ditches filled in, holding water on the large area.

The huge 2,000 feet of 30-inch pipe will act as a drain for an additional 4,000 feet of pipe draining the farmlands of the four Orland farmers.

This program was made possible, it was stated, through the cooperation of the Cook county highway department, by which surveys were made. The department also is installing the necessary 100 feet of pipe under the highway, plus catch basins necessary to dispose of the large volume of water to be handled by the system.

It is understood that the operation runs into large figures in money, but principals refuse to disclose the actual amount involved, since the work is of a private nature.

Halloween Party
At Lincoln Estates

The Halloween party for school children of Lincoln Estates will be on the grounds of the Ann Rutledge school this year starting at 7:30 p. m. Friday evening, October 31. If the weather is bad the program will be held in the school building. Hot dogs, popcorn, pop and moving pictures will be some of the features of the evening. The party is for all children of Lincoln Estates, it was stated.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Your mirrors will sparkle beautifully if washed with clear slightly lukewarm water containing a little starch. Allow to dry, then rub quickly.

Old shaving brushes are excellent for dusting small fragile articles or silk or rayon lamp shades. Wash the brush well and dry thoroughly before using.

If the colored stenciling on the fiber porch rug looks particularly faded this year, touch it up with quick-drying enamel. Patterns may be colored same shade as before.

If your child regularly eats one of his meals away from home—at nursery school or at his grandma's—while you work, find out exactly what he has eaten then. This way you will be able to round out his diet at breakfast and at supper.

Needles can be stored in a small bottle to keep them from rusting or getting lost.

When making children's dresses, make a wide tuck on the underside of the hem. Dresses are then easy to lengthen, and the tuck does not show.

When sending basted fabrics to the hemstitchers, mark the lines to be stitched with a decidedly contrasting color so that no place will be missed. Remember silk bastings will pull out much quicker than those done in cotton.

Where He Started

"As I understand it," said the Pacific islander, "you propose to civilize me?"

"Exactly so."

"You mean to get me out of habits of idleness and teach me to work?"

"That's the idea."

"And then lead me to simplify my methods and invent things to make my work lighter?"

"Yes."

"And next I shall become ambitious and get rich, so I shan't have to work at all?"

"Naturally."

"Well, what's the use of taking such a roundabout way. I don't have to work now."

That Nagging Backache

May Warn of Disordered Kidney Action

Modern life with its hurry and worry, irregular habits, improper eating and drinking—its risk of exposure and infection—throws heavy strain on the work of the kidneys. They are apt to become over-taxed and fail to filter excess acid and other impurities from the life-giving blood.

You may suffer nagging backache, headache, dizziness, getting up nights, leg pain, swelling—feet constantly tired, nervous, all worn out. Other signs of kidney or bladder disorder are sometimes burning, scanty or too frequent urination.

Try Doan's Pills. Doan's help the kidneys to pass off harmful excess body waste. They have had more than half a century of public approval. Are recommended by grateful users everywhere. Ask your neighbor!

THE FICTION CORNER

GOOD LOSER

By C. S. MONTAYNE

LUCY AMES could always tell when her husband drove in by the children's uproarious welcome. They were crowding down to the garage now—Bill Junior, Calvin, Cynthia, Paula and Roger, aged 8. Lucy heard their shrill, excited cries and, after a minute, Bill's hearty, roaring laugh. She smiled a little, faintly, as she went to the window and drew the curtain aside.

Why, she wondered, did children always adore their fathers? Perhaps it was because fathers were not home all day, telling them to do this, not to do that. Or because they were something of a novelty, who came home from week trips, with intriguing gifts. Her smile faded as she let the curtain drop.

This father, Lucy reflected with a sigh, was a strange mixture of bluff, good nature, generosity and egotism. Bill was a king in his own home—a fat, rollicking monarch whose reign had never been disputed. And there, Lucy decided, was the trouble.

The children humored him. They purposely indulged his desire to win at whatever games they played, because they seemed to instinctively know how much it meant to him. They fed his vanity, took a delight in keeping his laughter quick and ready. Lucy's face shadowed. She wondered why such a trivial matter as Bill's winning children's games should annoy her. But it did—it had from the first—that day last Summer when she had seen Calvin deliberately throw a handicap tennis match so his father could win.

"Dinner ready?"

They streamed in, Bill in the van, the children following. He caught Lucy by the elbows, and raised her for a kiss.

At the table there was a great clatter of crockery, voices. Bill telling about his trip, the children like trained stooges giving him leading questions. Bill Junior, looked down the table at his father.

"How about the family ping-pong tournament finals, dad? Play them off tonight?"

Lucy saw her husband's nod. "Sure, any time—but we'd better make it tomorrow. I've got a report to write after dinner." He added, amused: "Think you can beat me?"

"I've been practicing all week at the 'Y,'" young Bill told him.

In the dark, long after the others were asleep, Lucy thought about the family tournament. For a long time Bill Junior had wanted a bicycle to cover the rounds he made after school in search of magazine subscriptions. Dreamily, Lucy decided that if he won the tournament—if he beat his father—she would get it for him.

Again she wondered at herself, at her annoyance. Such a small, harmless conceit, this desire to win on big Bill's part. Why should she want to have him defeated? It was silly. And yet—

They assembled in the playroom the next night. Calvin made a log fire and Cynthia arranged the chairs. Paula was umpire and, cross-legged, graced the top of the radio table. Her expression was serious as if with the heavy responsibility of her role. Lucy, her arm about Roger, who had been allowed to stay up an extra hour for the momentous struggle, sat on the corner divan—watching.

It was brilliant table tennis. Hard fought, clean, clever.

Twice Bill Junior seemed to have his father beaten. Twice his aggressive defensive appeared to bewilder

Lucy wondered why young Bill failed to press his advantage—and then glanced at her husband's grimly set face.

Bill Junior chuckled. "Got some news for you. It's a secret for the time being, but I'll let you in on it if you keep your mouth shut."

"I won't say a word," Calvin promised. "What is it?"

"Last night Dad told me he's getting me a brand new bike the first of the month!" Young Bill's whisper was excitedly vibrant. "I ought to double up on the subscriptions soon as I get it. Pretty swell, eh?"

THE heavy, significant silence broken only by the click of the bouncing celluloid ball and the gallery's strained, anxious breathing ended in a scream of sudden joy.

"Game and set!" Bill threw down the rubber-faced paddle and let out a shout of laughter.

The children swarmed enthusiastically over him. This, Lucy knew, was her husband's usual moment. Her smile was small and cryptic when she began rounding up her brood, sending them off to bed. Bill shook hands with his oldest son and switched the lights off.

"Guess the champ can't be beaten," young Bill said huskily.

When he started in business for himself, in a field which was overcrowded and harsh, a friend of mine ran into high stone walls of discouragement. Often he was ready to quit. Why keep on trying? he would ask himself. There didn't seem to be much ahead but failure.

"I would go home night after night perfectly willing to call it quits with life," he told me. "Three times I wondered if it wouldn't be better to end it all."

His wife advised him to see the family physician, and the physician recommended a psychiatrist. The examination lasted three days, but I can give you the gist of his recommendation in three words: "Just keep busy."

The psychiatrist's explanation ran like this: "The end of life is not thought. It is action. We are made for action. That we may move and act we have a marvelous system of muscles, nerves, senses; all designed for action, for doing something."

"The mind responds gleefully to the active life, and happiness consists, in the end, of action, action, action."

"Happiness depends upon what you do, not upon what you have, not upon what you think—but upon what you do."

I have observed many times that the most interesting personalities are not those of the lounge lizards or the do-nothings. They are the personalities which have been stamped definitely in the forge of action.

The minute this friend of mine began taking the advice literally, he began developing a happy outlook on life, began making good in his business.

I am glad to report that today he is in a thriving way, completely happy and well adjusted to his world. He has made good—because he kept busy.

My friend added some facets to the jewel the psychiatrist gave him. He began letting part of his action take the form of service to others—which further added to his happiness.

When black discouragement would come to him, he would think of something he could do for someone else.

A cripple in the block didn't get out much. He'd take him for a ride. He'd make kites for the kids who lived near by. He'd go on errands for his wife. Anything of action and service—that was his field.

There emerged from his discipline something fine in the way of a human personality and character, and I am not so sure but that this is one of the most vital personality lessons any one of us can possibly learn—"just keep busy."

Later, Lucy went from room to room making sure windows were not open too wide, that blankets were over small, hunched shoulders, doors properly closed. The dark lay thick in the room Bill Junior shared with Calvin. She heard someone move when she went in on quiet feet.

"That you, mother?"

She sat down on the edge of the bed. Her son's hand slipped into hers.

"A good game, Bill." She squeezed his fingers before she released them. "Well played. I'm sorry you didn't win."

He drew a deep, long breath. "So'm I. Pop's tough. Got to be awful good to take him."

"I suppose so." Her voice was low, flat. "Goodnight, dear."

After she quietly closed the door and her footsteps dwindled down the hall, Bill Junior raised himself on one arm.

"Awake, Stinky?"

The springs in Calvin's bed twanged as he turned over. "Yeah, why?"

Christian Conduct

Lesson for November 2, 1947

CHRISTIAN standards of conduct must be understood as Christ's standards, not man's standards. Our lesson makes this quite clear when James declares,

"My brethren, be not many masters (judges), knowing that we shall receive the greater condemnation," James 3:1. James goes on in this third chapter to emphasize the truth that man is by nature inclined to "run away," even as the horse when he is not bridled, or the ship when it is not controlled.

Which brings the first practical lesson—that of the tongue. "The tongue is a little member," says James, "and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth!"

Which adds up to this: The words we say have much to do with what people think of our standard of conduct. If we speak words of truth and kindness, we need not be concerned what people will think of us.

Retail Trade Total Up in Will County

Retail trade in Will county in the first half of 1947 was 84.3 per cent greater in dollar volume than in the corresponding prewar period of January-July, 1941, according to estimates just prepared by the bureau of economic and business research at the University of Illinois.

Sales in the first six months of this year totaled $48,621,228 in Will county, exceeding even those of a year ago by 25.4 per cent.

However, because a substantial part of the increase in dollar volume is the result of price increases, the true change of sales between the first halves of 1941 and 1947—adjusted for the price increases—shows a gain of only 21.3 per cent, the bureau explains, and the change from last year was actually a gain of 5.8 per cent.

RUSS TEACH HATRED

The Soviet educational system, says Prof. George S. Counts of Teachers college, Columbia university, is a definite threat to the world's peace, reports Pathfinder.

Recent changes, he reports, have made it a propaganda medium so perfect that Americans would do well to take notice.

First, co-education has been abolished from elementary and high schools. This is due to what the Soviets call the "differentiation of the military-physical preparation of the youth of the two sexes." In other words, the boys need to be given so much military training it would be foolish to keep them in the same classes with the girls. Military training for boys starts in the fourth grade.

Second, all pupils are being taught a burning hatred of the Soviet Union's enemies. Unqualified loyalty to the "Motherland," particularly to Stalin and the Communist party, is instilled in every child.

often suffer unnecessarily from the results of wearing eyeglasses no longer fitted to the pathological needs of the body. Too often unhappiness, with waning vision, is inflicted upon persons who remain unconscious of the reason for unhappiness, sometimes expressed in crankiness—perhaps the result of eye strain coming from lack of proper eyeglasses.

CHILDREN . . .

often children are listless, uncomfortable, make poor grades in school, dislike school, for no other reason than their eyes require attention. Optometrists frequently can prescribe eyeglasses that will set the youngsters on the road to enjoying school and earning better marks. In fairness to children, take good care of their sight.

A broken lens can be duplicated in a very short time. Neither your prescription nor a re-examination is necessary, just as long as you bring in the pieces.

However, if you have not had your eyes checked recently, it will be wise to have this done—just to be sure the glasses you are wearing now are correct for the present condition of your eyes.

High Schools On Own
Is Stoddard's Idea

High schools should not be primarily college preparatory, but each should have a curriculum relating to the needs of youth in its own community, according to President George D. Stoddard of the University of Illinois.

Commenting on the proposal that all inspecting and accrediting of Illinois high schools be taken over by the state superintendent of public instruction, Dr. Stoddard today expressed the opinion that colleges should not dictate what high schools should teach, even though college preparation is the need of a large proportion of the students.

High schools should have the best possible program for all students, he said, and the colleges should be prepared to build on that program.

If the university withdraws from all accrediting activities, he explained, it would leave the University of Illinois in the position of making "strictly professional" contacts with the high schools.

Under these circumstances, it was pointed out that the university could study the comparative success in engineering, for example, of students who had or had not taken certain courses in high school mathematics. Results of such a study would be reported to the secondary schools. This would be quite different from telling the high schools they "have to teach certain courses," President Stoddard said.

The expression to "double in brass" dates from the time when almost every American village and town took great pride in its local band. Employers advertised for workmen who could also play a band instrument or "double in brass," the World Book Encyclopedia relates.

Printer's Error

We cite the makeup of a certain newspaper when the printer got a wedding and an auction sale mixed up, with the following results:

"William Smith, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Smith and Miss Lucy Anderson were disposed of at public auction at my farm one mile west in the presence of 70 guests, including two mules and 12 head of cattle.

"Rev. Jackson tied the nuptial knot for the parties averaging 1250 pounds on the hoof. The beautiful home of the bride was decorated with one sulky rake, one feed grinder, and two sets of work harnesses, nearly new and just before the ceremony was pronounced, the Mendland Sons wedding march was rendered by one milch cow and one sheep, who carrying a bunch of bride's roses in her hand, was very beautiful. She wore one light spring wagon, two crates of apples, three racks of hay, one grindstone of mousseline desole and trimmings. The bridal party left yesterday on an extended trip."

FIRST JAPANESE

Not yellow men, but white men, are believed by some scientists to have been the first people to live in Japan. These light-skinned people were the Ainu, according to the World Book Encyclopedia. Some students also believe that along with the natives of Australia, they are the oldest people on earth.

There are about 20,000 Ainu still living in the Kurile Islands.

Apportionment Maps
Issued by Official

A new publication containing judicial, congressional, and senatorial apportionment maps for Illinois has been announced by Secretary of State Edward J. Barrett.

This is the first time, the secretary said, that the apportionment maps have been brought together in a single publication. For comparative purposes, the pamphlet includes maps and descriptions of congressional reapportionment under both the Act of 1901 and the new act passed by the 65th General Assembly.

Mr. Barrett said that another helpful information table lists counties, county seats, and the numbers of their senatorial, congressional, appellate, and supreme court judicial districts, and judicial circuits.

Oh! It's Not So Light

When you describe something as "light and airy" perhaps the term isn't as exact as you think. According to the World Book Encyclopedia, the total weight of the air surrounding the earth is nearly six million billion (6,000,000,000,000,000) tons! The weight of the air pressing down on a standard size newspaper page is more than two tons!

Prepare NOW to keep their whistle-wetter
at a drinkable temperature
all winter!

Freezing weather isn't with us long before we realize that frozen stock tanks mean frozen profits. Icy, hard-to-get-at water quickly discourages animals from drinking the gallons of water they need to make more meat and milk.

The best way to end winter watering problems (and save yourself the work of chopping out the tank) is to plug-in an Electric Stock Tank Water Warmer. See your favorite dealer today and learn in a minute how an easily installed, economically operated Stock Tank Water Warmer will save you time and work... how it will more than pay for itself by helping to keep production and profits up when the temperature goes down!

PUBLIC SERVICE COMPANY OF NORTHERN ILLINOIS

"TALK UP THE TRUTH,"

EMPLOYERS ADVISED

Employers should "talk up the truth" about America's competitive economy, Holcombe Parkes, vice-president in charge of public relations of the National Association of Manufacturers, told Georgia industrialists recently meeting in Atlanta.

"Private enterprise has been entirely too private" in the past, and "the fakers of the left have made headway because we have failed to sell the true story of the meaning and the achievements of free enterprise," Mr. Parkes said, adding:

"You can talk up the truth about how jobs are created, how products are developed, how services are improved in quality, how they are brought down in costs, how productivity is the only way to make jobs and better pay and greater security."

TO PAY EMPLOYEES IN MEXICAN PESOS

A large pen manufacturing company in Janesville, Wis., will pay 40 per cent of the salary of 2,000 employees in Mexican pesos for one pay period.

The president announced that the purpose of the use of pesos is to emphasize the significance of foreign trade to the company. Janesville merchants have agreed to accept the pesos at 20 cents each, face value, and the banks will accept them for deposit or exchange.

The company state that "the itinerant of the pesos should prove that every grocer, lawyer, barber, landlady, farmer, or merchant in Janesville is involved in the export business of the United States whether he knows it or not."

December's safety lesson for school children in 38,000 classrooms throughout Chicago Motor Club territory in Illinois and Indiana is to look both ways before crossing streets. From where I sit... by Joe Marsh

Sam's a
Matrimony Expert

Sam Abernathy never intended to be a matrimony expert, but he hit the nail on the head the other day when he said:

"What marriage really needs is more open minds and a lot fewer open mouths."

Sam may not think much of his missus' choice of hats or her habit of serving watercress and cream cheese salad. But he keeps his mouth shut (I mean, he just uses it to eat the salad). And the missus never criticizes Sam's affection for that worn-out chair before the fire, and his mellow glass of beer and pipe at the end of a long day.

From where I sit, that prescription would apply to most human relationships. Criticism rarely rouses anything but resentment. But an open mind—whether it's applied to a woman's choice of hats, or a husband's preference for a pipe and a moderate glass of beer or two—leads to the conclusion that there's right on both sides.

"THE SPIRIT OF 1776" . . . The Freedom Train, which is making a tour of the nation with 128 historic documents that are the foundation stones of our liberties, is shown in Philadelphia at the start of the year-long trip. Two members of the train's marine corps guard stand beside the locomotive. In the background is Philadelphia's city hall, surmounted by a statue of William Penn.

SHRINE ON WHEELS

Freedom Train Unfolds Story Of Nation's Democratic Ideals

WNU Features.

History is rolling across America in the form of the Freedom Train, the moving symbol of the nation's year of rededication to the ideals and practices of democracy. From Philadelphia, universally conceded to be "the cradle of American liberty," the Freedom Train has embarked on a 30,000-mile, year-long tour during which it will visit more than 300 communities in all of the 48 states.

An integral phase of the year of rededication, which is designed as a broad educational program to emphasize the blessings of the common American heritage of liberty for every individual citizen, the Freedom Train will bring precious documents recording that freedom to the attention of millions of Americans.

Ranging from the first printed references to Christopher Columbus' discovery of America in 1492 to the charter of the United Nations, approved in 1945, the documents unfold a story covering 453 epochal years in world history. More than 125 original copies of such historical manuscripts as the Constitution, the Bill of Rights, the Declaration of Independence and the Emancipation Proclamation are included in the national shrine on wheels.

Each document is placed in a plastic envelope fitted to the individual book or sheet. The envelope is waterproof, fireproof and shatterproof. Manufacturers claim the material is so strong that it would require a 100-pound ball traveling at 50 miles an hour to pierce the surface.

The covered documents are placed in cases of steel plate covered by special shatterproof double glass sheets. The glass is treated to discourage ultra-violet ray penetration as the rays are harmful to the old and fragile paper of many of the old documents.

Protective Measures.

Every object in the seven-coach train with exception of the documents is fireproof through installation of a special fire-extinguishing system employing carbon-dioxide.

Thirty-six marines, including many war veterans, will guard the display day and night.

Named "The Spirit of 1776" and sporting a brilliant red, white and blue color scheme, the Freedom Train will be a conspicuous exhibit.

Containing 128 items of American memorabilia, the documents included in the Freedom Train display have been termed "the outstanding collection of original American papers ever assembled in one exhibit."

The American heritage of freedom and free institutions is typified by such documents as the English Bill of Rights, the Declaration of Independence, Jefferson's Bill for Religious Freedom, the Draft of the Constitution with annotations by George Washington, Lincoln's first draft of the Emancipation Proclamation and Jefferson's letter on Freedom of the Press.

Shown as a sequel to the Declaration of Independence is a copy of the Treaty of Paris, signed September 3, 1783, in which Great Britain recognized the independence of the United States. The treaty was signed for the United States by Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and John Jay.

Historically Valuable.

Washington's Farewell Address, Lincoln's draft of the Gettysburg Address, papers of Thomas Jefferson, Franklin, James Madison, Andrew Jackson and other leaders in the early days of the country add to the historical significance of the exhibit.

Typical of the more glamorous aspects of the nation's early history are a manuscript containing the only known authoritative account of the first raising of the flag, the bona-fide log book of the famous frigate Constitution, better known as "Old Ironsides," and Jackson's letter to the secretary of war describing the Battle of New Orleans.

Among the odd exhibits are Benjamin Franklin's own epitaph in his own hand, one of the most famous epitaphs in the English language, which was written out for Samuel Morris and presented to him by Poor Richard on August 31, 1776, and the original letter in Siamese from King Mongkut of Siam offering to send a gift of elephants to President Lincoln in 1861.

Included in the exhibits in the World War II section are the original pencilled draft by Gen. George Marshall announcing appointment of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower to command the invasion of western Europe, the war department's original copy of the last radiogram sent by General Wainwright from Corregidor, the last part of which was garbled as communications were broken off, and Admiral Nimitz' original report of the Battle of Midway.

Surrender Documents.

As evidence that "Freedom Triumphs," the original German surrender documents at Rheims, signed May 7, 1945, and the log of the USS Missouri, displayed at the page covering the Japanese surrender aboard the battleship in Tokyo bay September 2, 1945, are placed on display.

Concluding the exhibit is a section, "Flags of Freedom," which includes such historic flags as the famous flag raised on Mount Suribachi by U. S. marines in the invasion of Iwo Jima.

Process Reversed As Teacher Herself Kept After School

PHILADELPHIA, PA. — Not a single small fry was on hand to witness the teacher's embarrassment when Miss Betty Johnston, 38, instructor at Taggart elementary school, was "kept after school" for two hours.

Miss Johnston, who had remained after classes to mark papers, failed to notice the building custodian had locked all doors. She phoned police when she realized her predicament. Two patrolmen arrived with a ladder, but Miss Johnston refused to make the 25-foot descent from a first floor window. A search produced the janitor and a key.

Repentant Outlaw Becomes Minister

RAWLINS, WYO. — An outlaw when he was only 14 years old, the Rev. Jenks D. Harris now travels by plane to preach in isolated communities frequently deprived of a minister's services.

Repenting of a crime career during the first year of a 15-year prison term in San Quentin for robbery, Harris decided to become a minister. He spent the next six years preaching to his fellow convicts and has continued his ministerial work since his parole 16 years ago.

As a child, Harris had listened to stories about the James brothers. After he left home, he acted as a western outlaw, underground character and stunt man in Hollywood, but picture work did not bring the income he desired. Using the plot of his current picture as a pattern, he formed a gang and robbed a bank.

Defective Hearing Aided

Veterans' administration has inaugurated a new program for the benefit of approximately 30,000 World War veterans who suffered hearing impairments during their service, in an attempt to help them overcome the handicap.

Eligible veterans may take advantage of this program whether they require medical attention to improve their hearing or whether they need rehabilitation to overcome the handicap of a permanent hearing impairment.

The complete rehabilitation course includes a series of hearing and speech tests, the selection and fitting of a hearing aid if indicated, auditory training, lip reading instruction and speech correction if necessary.

VA's department of medicine and surgery has contracts with the following institutions to give all or a part of the complete rehabilitation course:

Institute for Speech Correction, Boston; Syracuse university, Syracuse, N. Y.; Vanderbilt clinic, Presbyterian hospital, New York City; National Hospital for Speech Disorders, New York City; City College of New York, New York City; Navy Aural Rehabilitation center, U. S. naval hospital, Philadelphia; Army Aural Rehabilitation center, Walter Reed hospital, Washington, D. C.; University of Virginia, Charlottesville, Va.; University of Alabama, Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Louisiana State university, Baton Rouge, La.; Cleveland Speech and Hearing center, Western Reserve university, Cleveland, Ohio; Ohio State university, Columbus, Ohio, and Indiana university, Bloomington, Ind.

Questions and Answers

Q. I dropped out of college last spring and owed Veterans' administration for a month's subsistence allowance which I was overpaid. So far I have neglected to repay the money. My question is may I register for college again this fall under the G.I. bill and then make some kind of arrangement for repayment to VA?—L. P. A., Falls City, Neb.

A. Veterans' administration has ruled that if you have owed the overpayment for more than 60 days you must arrange to repay the amount before you are eligible to register for school under the G.I. bill. If you have owed it less than 60 days you can register and then make arrangements for repaying the amount.

Q. I am a discharged veteran and am receiving disability compensation payments. I now am considering joining the national guard and I understand I must give up my disability payments in order to enlist. May I apply for my compensation again some time in the future and will I still be eligible for other veterans benefits?—L. D., Albuquerque, N. M.

A. VA says the answer is yes to both questions. If you apply for compensation in the future, however, approved awards will be paid from the date of your second application. If you enter training under public law 16 while you are in the national guard, you waive your right to receive the additional allowance paid to disabled veterans; all you will get will be $65 per month if you have no dependents or $90 if you have dependents.

Q. My husband is a veteran who has had three and one-half years of service. He is now working under on-the-job training. Could you tell me if he is insured under this on-the-job training?—Mrs. S. J. P., Norway, Mich.

A. The government provides no insurance for veterans who are taking on-the-job training.

Q. I am a veteran and would like to go to school under the G.I. bill to get some good out of the law. I don't know just what to study though. When I was drafted into the army they gave some aptitude tests and I showed pretty good on mechanics.—R. A. B., High Point, N. C.

A. Would suggest you contact your nearest Veterans' administration office and consult their advice and guidance service. If there is no such service in your nearest office, they can advise you where you can contact such a service. There are 650 such services in the country.

Q. While I was in France, shortly after the war ended, I mailed some film to the army post exchange for processing. What steps can I take to recover my film which was never returned to me?—N. G. U., Shreveport, La.

A. Write to the Quartermaster General, Depot Operations Branch, War Department, Washington 25, D. C., for information about obtaining the film which you mailed to the army post exchange headquarters in France. Be sure to give your full name, former grade and serial number.

Champion Farmer McKINLEY Uses

Firestone CHAMPION GROUND GRIPS

AND HE GETS UP TO 100% MORE EFFECTIVE CLEANING
62% MORE DRAWBAR PULL · 91% LONGER WEAR

More than Seven Million Pounds of Produce! That is the production record Champion Farmer H. L. McKinley (on tractor), and sons Don, Phil, Hal and Keith (not shown) made last year on 1100 acres of rich farmland near St. Ansgar, Iowa. Their record includes 2½ million pounds of potatoes from 135 acres, and a nearly equal poundage of choice cabbage from 100 acres. The McKinleys keep their soil highly fertile by a five-year rotation and the application of 170 tons of fertilizer annually. An extensive steer and hog feeding program turns corn and roughages into cash, and builds additional fertility in the soil. The farm is highly mechanized. All eight tractors roll on Firestone Tires.

ECONOMY-MINDED farmers like Champion Farmer H. L. McKinley find costs go down when they use Firestone Champion Ground Grips.

Tests show that Firestone Champion Ground Grips clean up to 100% more effectively, pull up to 62% more, last up to 91% longer, and roll smoother over highways.

The reasons are simple. The curved bars cut deeply into the soil. Mud falls easily and cleanly from the tapered openings between the bars. Because the traction bars are connected, they're stronger, they have more tread rubber to push into the ground and pull. This extra tread rubber also lengthens tire life . . . makes tires roll smoother.

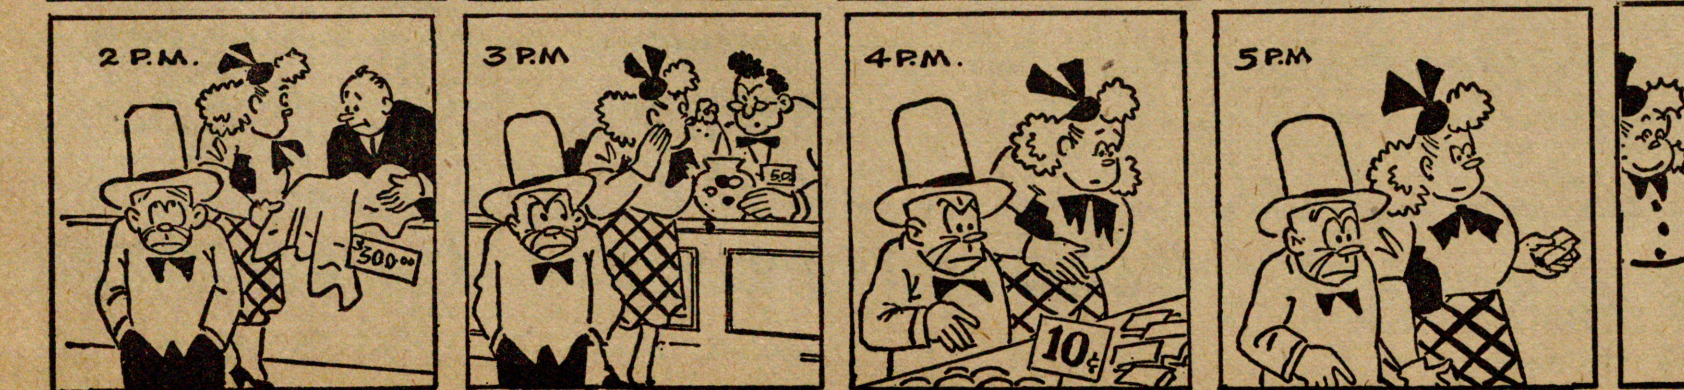

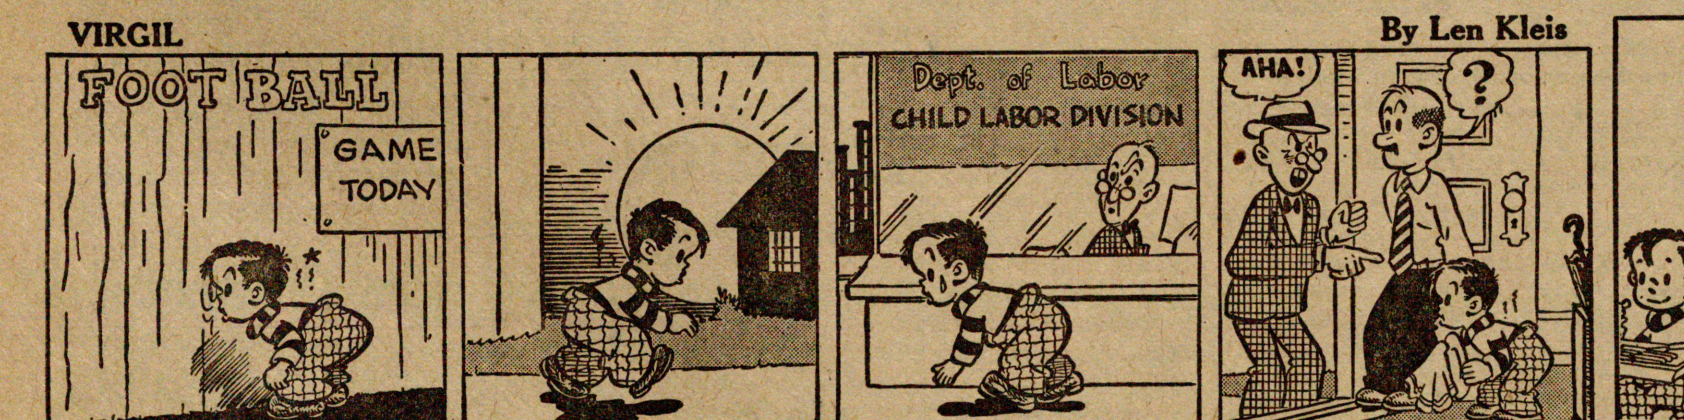

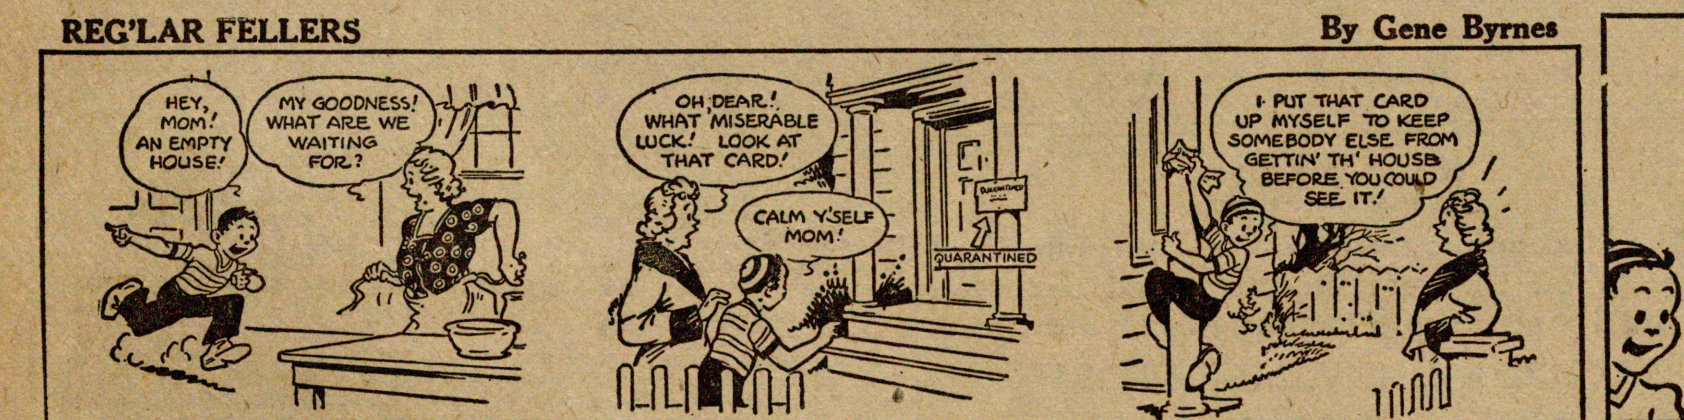

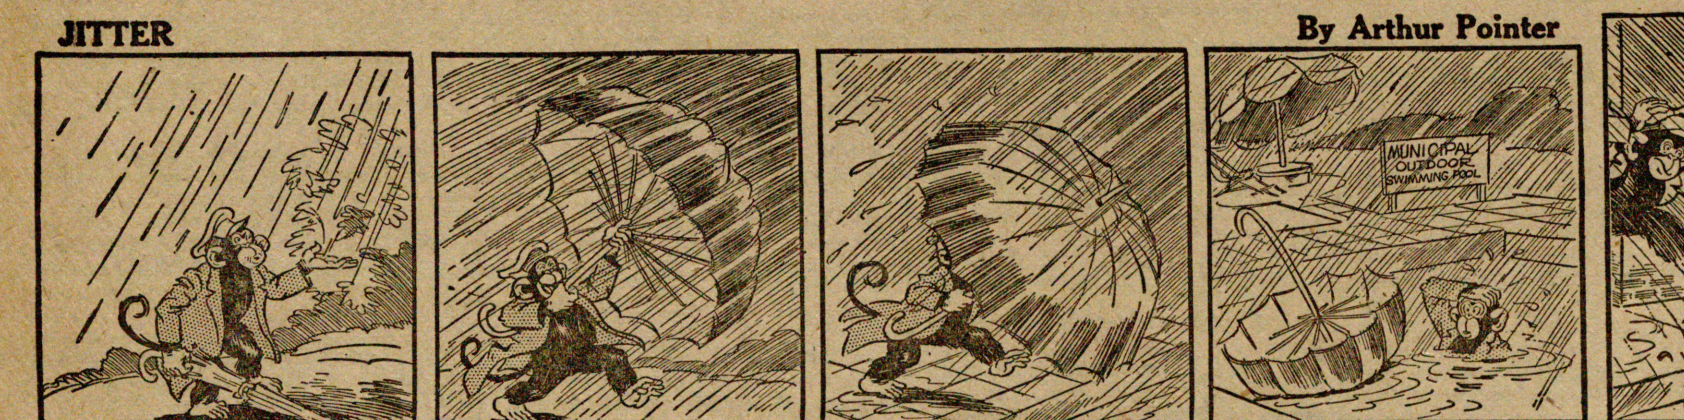

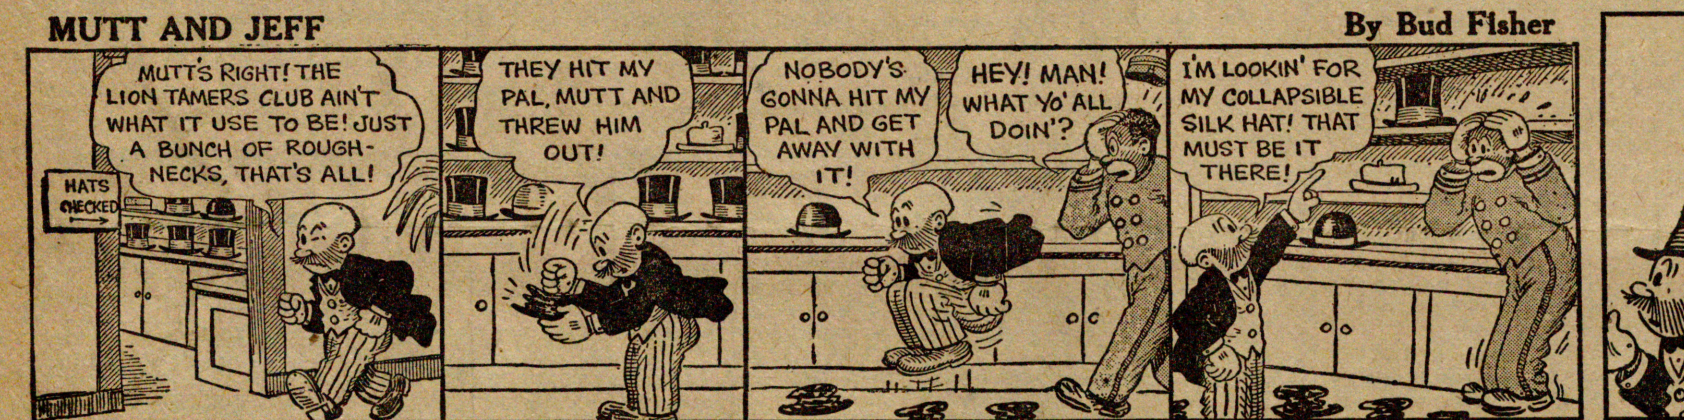

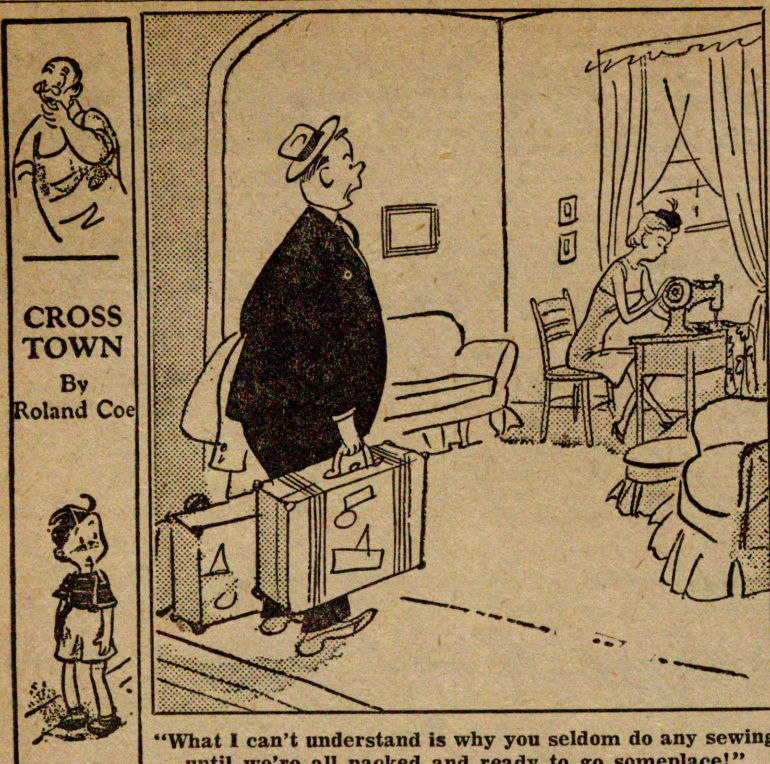

Although judged best by leading farmers everywhere, Firestone Champion Ground Grips cost no more than ordinary tractor tires. Specify the "Champion" when you order your new tractor, or when you buy replacements for your tires. See your nearest Firestone Dealer or Store today.

NE-BRATH-KA

According to the Encyclopedia Britannica, Nebraska was named the "Tree Planters' State" by act of legislature in 1895 because Arbor day was originated there by J. Sterling Morton, and because forestry was emphasized by its pioneers and their successors. The name "Nebraska" itself, suggested by Fremont in 1843, was derived from the Otoe Indian name for the Platte river—"Ne-brath-ka," meaning "shallow water."

Mustard Potato Salad A Hit for Club Lunches

An attractive platter of potato salad, cold cuts and deviled eggs will make a real hit at that next club luncheon, advises the Rural Home Editor of Capper's Farmer, one of the best known farm magazines.

For added zest, make the potato salad with mustard cream dressing, she writes. You can give it an extra tang, too, with diced raw cucumbers or crumbled fried bacon.

MUSTARD CREAM POTATO SALAD

6 medium potatoes
1/2 c. prepared mustard
1/2 c. evaporated milk
1/4 c. sugar
1/4 c. vinegar
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 c. onions, chopped
1/2 c. celery, diced
1 tsp. celery salt

Cook potatoes in their jackets until tender. When cold, skin and dice. For dressing combine sugar, mustard, milk, vinegar and salt; beat thoroughly. Toss together lightly potatoes, onion, celery, celery salt and salad dressing to moisten. Chill before serving. Add hard-cooked egg if desired. Serves 6.
